The World of Pokémon

Welcome to the final issue of Pokémon Power! Your first adventure in the world of Pokémon is coming to an end, but the fun is just beginning. This month, not only will we reveal the secret location of the menacing Mewtwo, but we'll also reveal the tricks to trading and collecting some of the rarest Pokémon in the game. Speaking of rare, we'll also tell you how you can win Mew, the 151st Pokémon!

A new Pokémon has been discovered, and it could be yours!

Marvelous Mew Revealed!

PALLET TOWN - Professor Oak, the world's foremost Pokémon expert, issued a stunning announcement today from his research lab in Pallet Town. In a press conference, the professor confirmed reports of his discovery of a 151st Pokémon, a creature he has dubbed Mew. "This is the crowning achievement of my career," the professor stated, blinking back a tear, "and I'm pleased and proud to be associated with such fine and noble creatures." When asked where trainers might go to capture Mew for themselves, the professor remained coy. "This Pokémon is the rarest of all," he said, "and with so few specimens out there, they're going to be hard to get." While many details about Mew remain a mystery for now, Professor Oak did note that Mew is a Psychic-type Pokémon.

Professor Oak

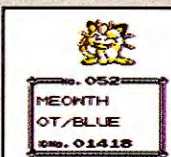

When asked if this discovery signaled his return to active Pokémon training, Professor Oak laughed and said he would "leave all the running around to the younger generation."

Trading Surge

CELADON CITY - Prompted by the discovery of Mew, trading on the Pokémon Exchange has been fiercer than ever, likely signaling another huge surge in Pokémon popularity. "I've never seen a bull market like this," stated one veteran trader. "All sorts of people are collecting and trading Pokémon now. It's bigger than ever!"

You may need to trade for rare Pokémon like Meowth, which is in the Blue version only.

Ash Named World's Greatest

PALLET TOWN - In other title after defeating his long-time rival, Gary, and a host of League officially recognized the League's best trainers, Ash as the World's Greatest including Blaine, Giovanni and the Elite Four.

The Official Nintendo Player's Guide

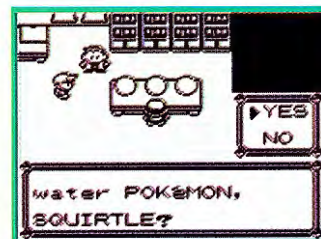

The road to becoming the World's Greatest Pokémon Trainer is not an easy one, but the pros at Nintendo Power can help guide you every step of the way. Just pick up an Official Pokémon Player's Guide for the best tips on where and how to collect your favorite Pokémon, plus detailed maps and an in-depth Pokémon Field Guide!

Which Did You Choose?

Choice and Consequence

When Professor Oak offered you a choice between Bulbasaur, Charmander and Squirtle, you may not have realized how this decision would affect your entire game. Depending on which Pokémon you choose, you may end up using different battle strategies, and, in turn, collecting very different Pokémon. In addition, your choice not only affects which Pokémon you collect, it also affects which Pokémon Gary collects.

Gary

Gary is the only thing between you and the title of World's Greatest Pokémon Trainer. The first half of his team consists of Pidgeot (level 61), Alakazam (level 59) and Rhydon (level 61). The second half of his team depends on which Pokémon he chose when the game began. When you challenge Gary, you probably want your Pokémon to be at level 74.

Bulbasaur

If Gary chose Bulbasaur, the second half of his team will be Gyarados (Water-type and Flying-type), Arcanine (Fire-type) and, of course, Venusaur (Grass-type and Poison-type).

The Hunt for Mewtwo

The Unknown Dungeon

As the undisputed Pokémon League champ, you must first capture Mewtwo, the Pokémon that escaped from Cinnabar Island. After you defeat Gary and watch the end scene and credits, press Start to make the main menu appear, then select Continue. You'll pick up your game where you left off. Go back to Route 24, dive into the river and swim south to find the Unknown Dungeon. Follow the ladders in the cave in order from A to G to find Mewtwo.

Mewtwo is on the lowest level of the Unknown Dungeon, in the bottom-right corner. The only way guaranteed to catch him is to use the Master Ball from the president of Silph Co. If you don't have it, you'll have to do things the old-fashioned way.

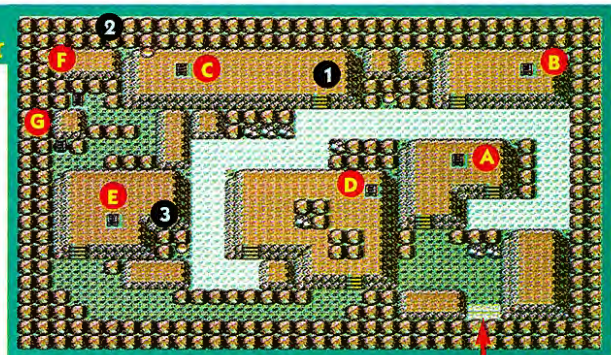

Replay Value

At this point, you can continue your game and try to collect some Pokémon you missed. It may be difficult to capture some Pokémon, though. For example, if you defeated Zapdos, Articuno or Moltres instead of capturing them, they won't appear again in your current game. In that case, you may want to begin a new game. You'll have a chance to choose a different "starter" Pokémon and try different collecting strategies. You'll even be able to keep all your current Pokémon!

Special Stone Evolution

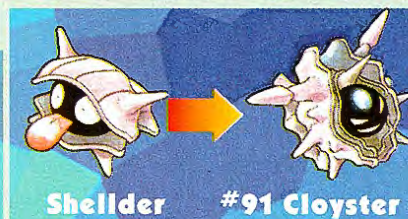

Precious Stones

To help you on your continuing search, we'll give you a few hints on collecting the rarer Pokémon, starting with these amazing specimens. Some Pokémon, like Eevee, evolve only when exposed to special stones. The stones can be found in Celadon City, and the chart below shows which Pokémon are affected by them.

MOON STONE

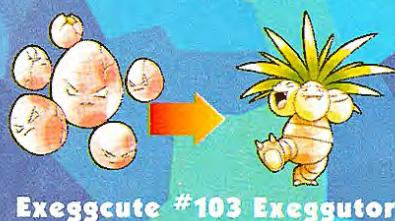

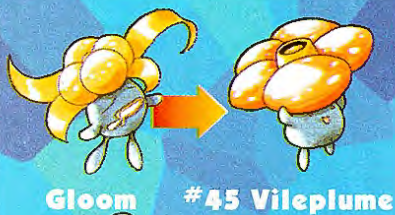

THUNDER STONE

WATER STONE

LEAF STONE

These Pokémon evolve instantly when exposed to the correct stone and don't have to be at a certain level.

Other Rare Pokémon

Wake-Up Call

Other rare Pokémon include Snorlax, which will appear in only two spots in the game: on Route 12, south of Lavender Town, and on Route 16, just outside of Celadon City. You can use the Poké Flute to give the Snorlax a wake-up call, but be ready for a battle. Amnesia, Head Butt and Rest are its trademark abilities.

Taking a Chance

Porygon is available only in the Exchange Corner in Celadon City. If you have the Blue version of the game, you can buy this finely faceted specimen for the bargain price of 6,500 coins. If you have the Red version, you'll have to fork over a whopping 9,999 coins! You can win (or buy) coins at the nearby Game Corner.

Prehistoric Pokémon

The scientists on Cinnabar Island are able to turn the Helix Fossil into Omanyte (#138), the Dome Fossil into Kabuto (#140) and the Old Amber into Aerodactyl (#142). Obtaining the Old Amber isn't a problem, but you can collect only one fossil per game, so you'll have to choose between Omanyte and Kabuto.

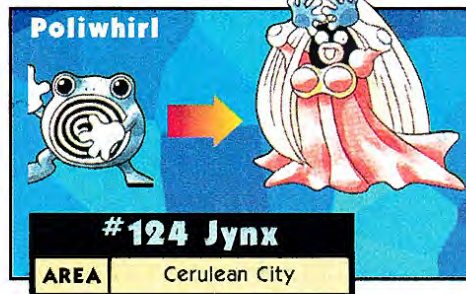

#142 Aerodactyl

The Art of the Deal

Of course, you're not the only Pokémon collector around, and there are some people who are eager to trade rare Pokémon for relatively common ones. If someone offers to trade, say, a Jynx for a Poliwhirl, you'd be wise to make the deal. Look for these traders in the areas noted.

A Little Help From Your Friends

Of course, even if you collect all the Pokémon in your game, you'll still come up short. Some Pokémon are found only in the Red version of the game, and some are only in the Blue version. To catch 'em all, you'll have to trade for the Pokémon that you're missing. To trade, you must have two Pokémon Game Paks, two Game Boys and a Game Link Cable. Once the Game Boys are connected, visit the Cable Club in any Pokémon Center to begin the trading process.

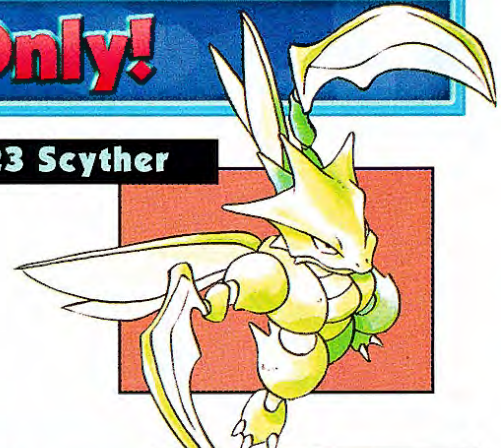

Red Version Only!

The Pokémon on this chart can be captured in the Red version of the game only. Electabuzz and Scyther do not appear at all in the Blue version. Ekans and the others shown below may appear in duels with rival trainers in the Blue version, but you won't be able to capture them.

Evolutionary Link

There are even Pokémon that will evolve only after they are traded. For example, no matter how much you build up Kadabra's levels, it will remain its same old self. If you trade it to another player, however, it will evolve immediately into Alakazam. The same goes for the other Pokémon shown at the right.

Blue Version Only!

The Pokémon on this chart can be captured in the Blue version of the game only. Pinsir and Magmar do not appear at all in the Red version, but Meowth and the others shown below may appear in duels with rival trainers.

Pokémon Power Exclusive!

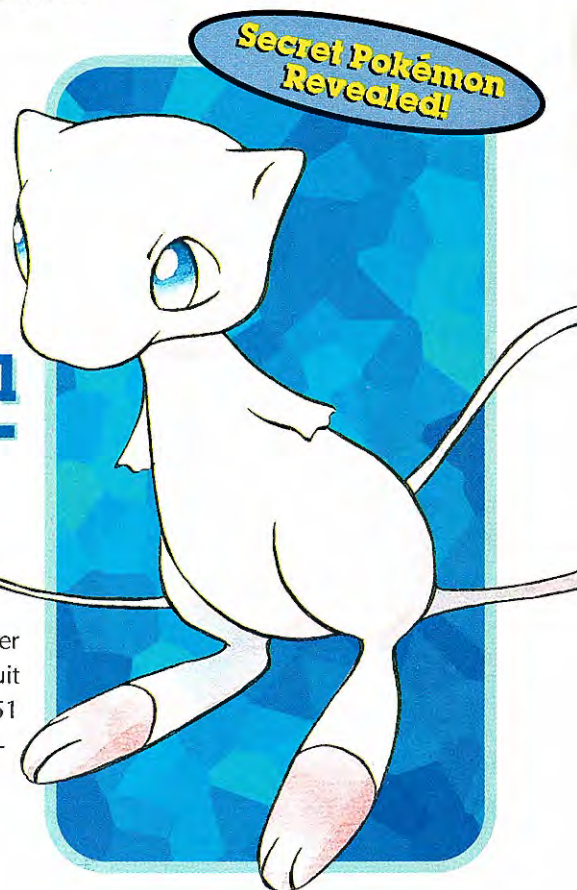

The entire Pokémon world is being turned upside down with the stunning announcement that there is an 151st Pokémon! Its name is Mew, and it's not only the most powerful Pokémon around, it's also the rarest one of all. Here's an exclusive look at this amazing creature!

Pokémon #151 MEW

The Rarest of Them All

Though Mew is an even-tempered creature, it's also one of the most formidable Pokémon in battle. Mew doesn't have many abilities at first, but it can learn Transform, Mega Punch, Metronome and Psychic when it reaches certain experience levels. What's even more amazing is that Mew can use every Technical Machine and Hidden Machine ever created. With this unique ability, a trainer can customize Mew to suit any fighting style or battle situation. Mew is incredibly rare, but 151 lucky trainers will be chosen in a random drawing to receive this fabulous creature!

#151 Mew

When Mew goes into battle against wild Pokémon, its opponents sometimes run away before Mew can strike even a single blow.

10	Transform
20	Mega Punch

Mew is arguably the most powerful Pokémon ever discovered. It can use any Hidden Machine and Technical Machine to learn a wide variety of special abilities.

Much about Mew remains a mystery, but Pokémon experts are studying it intensely. Who knows what other wondrous secrets will be uncovered?

Hello again, fellow Pokémon trainers. In this final edition of Pokémon Spotlight, I would like to thank you for your helpful comments and enthusiasm for all things Pokémon. I have enjoyed your cards, letters and drawings very much, and I must congratulate you all on your artistic skill. I leave you with a few more examples of your fine artwork. Good-bye and good luck with all your Pokémon adventures!

COMBAT CARD UPDATE: The Pokémon Trading Card Game Is Almost Here!

We have an update on the Pokémon Trading Card Game being developed by Wizards of the Coast. This month, we have some more details about the game's battle system. We've learned that rival trainers will use basic Pokémon cards to send their Pokémon into battle, Evolution cards to make them more powerful, and Energy cards to fuel their special attacks. There will also be Trainer cards that have special uses in combat.

Once a duel begins, the rival trainers will take turns drawing cards, putting new cards into play, and attacking with their Pokémon. If a Pokémon takes damage equal to or greater than its hit points, it will be knocked out and removed from play. Trainers will be able to claim victory in two ways: by defeating all rival Pokémon or by winning special "prize" cards during the match.

The starter version of the game will include two different 30-card decks (one for each trainer), ten point counters, and separate rule books for beginner and advanced play. The starter set will also include a collectible holographic foil card as a bonus!
